Memorandum: Safe, but a threat in the wrong hands

Classification ☐ Omega ☐ Daemon ☐ Stuia ☒ Safe ☐ Recondite ☐ Beneficial

1 Specification

Subject - 0131 is an old book with a forgotten language. The pages are worn out in places but all pages are legible. Whilst this book doesn't appear to have any special properties, it's contents are of interest to the corporation. Carbon dating is unreliable as this book is so old but has been refurbished multiple times. However this fact alone means that it is at least 55,000 years old and in almost perfect condition. The spine is a deep red and the writing is in dark blue ink for the entire book. Whilst the language isn't known exactly, cryptographers have created rough translations of which are a concern.

2 Containment Procedures

It does not require any special containment procedures. However, it is important that this book doesn't leave the facility, and for this reason should be kept in a secure vault, in case it falls into the wrong hands. This books contents could destabilise the world as we know it.

3 Behaviour

The book doesn't have any special properties outside of being old enough that it can't be carbon dated accurately. It should be noted however that translators that worked on its translation have a 40% suicide rate.

Translator Assessment 1 Subject - 0131 was attempted to be translated, but we can't be sure of its exact meaning due to language differences. This book may offer information once thought to be out of humanities reach. It is an exciting prospect as the earliest recorded history is at least 47,000 years younger than this. [FURTHER RESEARCH APPROVED]

Translator Assessment 2 The translation to the best of our ability was achieved, but the result is disturbing to say the least. The book talks about knowledge that shouldn't have been known at the time of writing, such as the predicting events such as the assassination of President-elect Newman in 2059. Further translations warn of the well documented simulation theory, that our very universe is but a play thing for another society. The people inside of this universe may believe they are aware, but are nothing more than puppets on strings. Whilst potentially world changing, there is no way to verify its claims and even if we could, there wouldn't be any way to fight such a civilisation. For that fact alone we are going to withhold this information from the public domain. [FURTHER RESEARCH IS NOT REQUIRED]

4 Origination

This books origination isn't obvious. Whilst carbon dating shows it to be 55,000+ years old, it contains knowledge as recent as this century. It was scouted from a local charity shop by a member of our research and development team.

5 Postscript

The final judgment on Subject - 0131 is that its contents can not be verified and therefore we won't be taking its version of reality as truth. However the evidence that it provides inside its pages are worrying. Predicting future events isn't a unique occurrence within our corporation, but it has appeared to do this without manipulating time in any way. Therefore, all instances of translated material have been annihilated as of reading this.
